

had his family around him, and fell a boundless confidence in the future.

An event upon which he had depended for the completeness of his triumph... He received an order from the Government for a hundred and fifty India-rubber balls.

He had then hung up all round the factory, and invited every one to come and inspect them. They were universally admired, and the order was congratulated upon his success.

His friends, his brothers, and his wife joined in dissuading him from further experiments. Who had ever touched India-rubber without loss?

Goodyear might have yielded to his friends on this occasion, for he was an affectionate man, devoted to his family, had not one of those trifling events occurred which influenced his curiosity anew.

Goodyear had approached so near his final success that one step more brought him to it. He was certain that he was very close to the secret.

He was puzzled by the result of his experiment. He was puzzled by the result of his experiment. He was puzzled by the result of his experiment.

It was just after declining the French proposal that he endured his worst extremity of want and humiliation. It was in the winter of 1839-40.

Another occasion, when he was in the most urgent need of material, he looked about his house to see what he could find.

Seeing no prospect of success in Massachusetts, he now resolved to make a desperate effort to get to New York.

To New York, then, he directed his thoughts. Merely to get there cost him a severer and a longer effort than men in general are capable of making.

He was puzzled by the result of his experiment. He was puzzled by the result of his experiment. He was puzzled by the result of his experiment.

It was not till the year 1844, more than ten years after he began to experiment, and more than five years after discovering the secret of vulcanization, that he was able to conduct his process with absolute certainty.

He returned to his native land a melancholy spectacle to his friends—yellow, emaciated, and feeble, but still devoted to his work.

An attempt was made to winter to vulcanizing patent for a further period of seven years, for the benefit of the creditors and the family of the inventor.

It is a remarkable fact that electricity travels so rapidly that it may be sent through guano without lighting it, and it is only when the guano is released that an explosion takes place.

Our Interior

Our country, so young, has become intensely historical. In traveling from New York to the Hudson, and from Albany to Wayne County, the beauty of nature in summer attire is a sufficient compensation for time and money spent on the voyage.

From the beautiful scene like this, that on our path a moment elapses, come, as the smoke comes out of the bright in their waiting locks of gold, unto the morning hills of God.

A TAMMANY LETTER GROUP. According to previous promise we present a few more letters selected from among those received for the celebration of the Tammany Society on the Fourth of July.

DEAR SIR: The circular of your association, inviting me to assist at the approaching festival of the American Independence, is received, and I regret that I cannot be present.

When, as a youth, looking into the nature and objects of Government, I concluded they ought not to be the exercise of power, the display of wealth and grandeur, but the promotion of justice, virtue, and the happiness of the people...

Here is a stirring article: FROM MRS. HANCOCK, W. S. HANCOCK. HANCOCK, MIDDLE MILITARY DIVISION, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2nd, 1865.

MY DEAR SIR: I regret very much that the invitation of the Tammany Society did not reach me until today, in consequence of my absence from the city...

Here is a statemanlike communication: FROM THE HON. W. S. HANCOCK, W. S. HANCOCK, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1st, 1865.

THE HON. W. S. HANCOCK, W. S. HANCOCK, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20, 1865.

DEAR SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th inst., and to assure you of my interest in the maintenance of the supremacy of the Union and Constitution...

Here is a patriotic note: FROM PATER GOWAN, P. O. NEW YORK, June 28, 1865.

LOCAL POLITICS. THE JUDY PAPER.

Mr. Purdy's letter came promptly to hand this week, and will be found below. It will be seen that he is in much trouble from the threatened dangers involved in the Senatorial nominations.

LOCAL POLITICS. THE JUDY PAPER. WHO WOULD BE AN ASSEMBLY?

Suppose, for the moment, if it were possible, Woodruff, Cozans, and Fields renominated in their respective districts, and Vance King in the district he lost.

Now, I don't know—and who does?—but it will ultimately be done in these respective directions; and if I did know, what a foolish oracle I would be to tell. In the meantime, the political business thrives and grows with hourly increasing rapidity.

From the London Saturday Review.
Monday
ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS.

Professor Owen, Mr. Frank Buckland, and others have certainly done a good deal to encourage the study of zoology, but unquestionably the greatest popular instructor in this branch of science has appeared in modern times in the hippopotamus. The arrival of that distinguished Egyptian among us fifteen years ago more than doubled the number of visitors to the Zoological Gardens in Regent's Park, and as the hippopotamus is a creature of London there is no wonder that it should have become so popular.

It is on Monday afternoons, perhaps, that the influence of this great philanthropist is best seen. Not that the visitors are more numerous than on the other days, but the band of the Second Life Guards performs by permission of Colonel Mansel, but that on Monday the crowd is a genuine holiday-making, righteously, best inspecting crowd, bent on getting its fill of hippopotamus and zoological recreation, and enjoying to the utmost all that the Society has to offer.

With all the interest and amusement which the hippopotamus affords, it is not the only attraction of the Zoological Gardens. The collection of birds is not only interesting, but also instructive. The collection of mammals is not only interesting, but also instructive. The collection of reptiles and amphibians is not only interesting, but also instructive.

Brooklyn. The Ekforda, although possessing a few fins, are only the shadow of what they have been. The game of Wednesday illustrates this, as with a start of 13 runs to 1 for the Ekforda, they were defeated. It would have taken something of a nine to turn the tables against them, with such a lead, a few years since.

The Keystones played very handsomely, displaying great pluck and perseverance in their successful effort to win an up-hill game, and one which opened so disastrously. Of the Keystones, Copy, as pitcher, played in a superior manner. Malone backing him up in grand style, Walker's usual base playing was marked by several beautiful catches. At the conclusion of the game the Keystones were generally entertained by the Ekfordas, who subsequently escorted them to their hotel. We append the score:

Franklin, when ambassador to France, being at a meeting of the literary society, and not well understanding the French when he saw a lady of his acquaintance express satisfaction. When they had ceased, a little child, who understood the French, said to him, "But, grandpapa, you always applauded the loud when they were praising you!" Franklin laughed heartily, and explained the matter.

Disson and Moore kept, the minute, were both tallors. Charles Bannister met them under the Piazza in Covent Garden, and in a moment he was in their power, and he was laughing at them. "I never see those men together," said he, "but they put me in mind of Shakespeare's comedy, 'Measure for Measure!'"

"Nature has written 'honest man' on his face," said a friend to Terrell, speaking of a person in whom Terrell's faith was not altogether blind. "I thought" Terrell replied, "then the pen must have been a very bad one."

"What is a dogman like a locomotive?" Because we have to look out for him when the bell rings.

"The model billiard saloons of Mr. Cms. O'Connor, at No. 69 and 72 Fourth street, are peculiarly delightful in the summer season, for as they are in the open air, the ventilation is most excellent. The coolness of the saloons enables players to enjoy a game, no matter how hot the weather. There are twenty-two billiard tables, each with its own attendant, attentive waiters and markers, and the visitors consist of the best class of citizens.

OLD DAYS
BY HAY, C. O. ARNOLD.

There is an old woman who lives in a hotel,
Down in the vale;
Oh her unbroken heart is long and a shore,
And still she waits.

A Gentle Life Squelcher.

BY THE ATLANTIC.

THE OXLEY LITER. ESSAYS IN AID OF THE Formation of Character. London: Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.

Here is a bit of concentrated history:
'On one of the last days of the year, 1862, in the midst of a dispirited city, and with a perplexed Senate and a beaten army as that city's safeguard, Mr. Henry Ward Beecher asserted in the Puritan Church in New York, that "Generals were of no use; that God fought against the North for upholding slaves; that the time was come when wickedness was to be rooted out; and, finally, that it was not only the province of the preacher to condemn vice, but that he should "plunge in, not by the root, should "slay" wickedness, and that slavery and alcohol should be put down by the arm of flesh, and the sword of the preacher."

met by looking that a hero's name was written in the "Pittsburgh Courier" was agreed among all civilized people that a nation's heroic memories are her most precious possessions. We ask the question simply as a rhetorical one. We are perfectly aware that the author means nothing. His seldom does mean anything. And if he did, he is the last person to whom we should apply for an exact definition of his meaning. He sees words with very little conception of their ordinary meaning; of the delicacy or force of his usage he has no sort of conception. He creates a new style of his own, and flatters himself that his disorderly mind, fetters it by fastening it on a single word, and sets it flitting against it. Justification in his all-adventurous substitute for connection, and a "moment's time, a point of space," between two statements is fatal to his argument.

forward into the guild of genius, that by the assumption of its tons and the broadcast "revelation" of its secrets, it is that the work of its life and ends of learning, or by what means it was known, it has been stated in a third edition in a country period of the accuracy and elegance of its separability, and that now brings its brain force to our doors, seeking a welcome at the heartbeats which it has insinuated, is not to be dismissed with a simple "Not at home." We have chosen rather to pillory the pretender, pelting him only with such adjectives as his own countrymen would use in a fit of rage, bidding him and all his kind bear in mind the assurance, that while for English genius, English wisdom, English truth, and English truth, and English gratitude, the time has gone by for English chivalry to expect from our hands anything but the scorching it deserves.

THE WILLOW.
BY MISS ELIZABETH A. GREEN.
O Willow, why forever weep,
As one who mourns an endless wrong?
What hidden woe can lie so deep?
What utter grief can last so long?

their return can be as accurately computed as that of the comet, and neither Mr. Gasley nor any other person has a right to infringe that law. The reader must not suppose that the entire editorial labor falls upon Mr. Gasley. Those familiar correspondents and "old friends," who still haunt the editors' sanctum of the cheap monthlies, are found here. Mr.
Gasley greets them with California familiarity: "Welcome, George Cooper; welcome," is at once greeting and explicit. The reviews are characterized by the spontaneous cheer and exuberance. Books are spoken of as "abounding in soul elevating thoughts," "ingratiatingly plotted," "emansations of first-class minds lit up by fires of awe-commanding genius." In short, Mr. Gasley's Pacific Monthly, to borrow one of his own criticisms, is like "the gleaming of a steel sword or the flash of mountain lightning." Whether or not these peculiar features are Californian, we leave the reader to judge.

The Old Sports
BY TOM QUICK.
"Murder, Rape, Arson, Soldiers Robbed, Garroters, Drugs, Policemen Shot, High-waymen, Robberies in omnibuses and cars, etc." Hold up, "Common Report," for you already startle me with your catalogue of crimes and horrors. If it was in the days when "Polyannus" Dixon flourished, or the "Hall of Novelty," admission 1-14 cents, was in full bloom, you would have found words of our citizens around the big posters of these concerns reading with interest such exciting headlines as you announce. Why, if all as you say, it is safe for a man or woman to walk abroad.

Now, let us see "Common Report," if beyond the fact that such crimes as you say are committed, in a city supposed to contain a million of inhabitants, besides the many thousands who arrive and depart from it daily—there is any need of making such a fuss about it, and if there is good policy in getting "old women" in such a scare, for really believe that a large majority of the cases are brought on by the fault of the victims themselves, and the cry you are trying to get up that the police are not vigilant, or are not doing their duty, is all wrong. Tom Quick likes things on the square, and knowing that the Luzern seconds him in his hits at the Times, feels he has their consent to look the matter over.

Do you forget what a fine man was when Superintendent Kennedy, without law (and yet with as much right as I would have to catch the knife that was about to be plunged into the heart of a friend I loved) seized the Rebel ammunition, that he well knew was about to be used to kill the friends of loyalty and the Union?
And yet there are those who, because he did this, are still hounding him. Do you forgive—if you do, Tom Quick does not—how the secession press of the North have abused and traduced Lincoln, Stanton, Dix, and other loyal men, for daring to clutch by the neck and hurl into prison, or make dead, Southern villains and Northern traitors and sympathizers, who in our midst only waited for opportunity to burn, kill and destroy? Knowing this, will you wonder that a policeman refuse to take the responsibility of arresting well-known villains, without warrants or facts?
Suppose he did so—take the responsibility—and you would applaud him—did he not right to arrest, make a complaint to his superiors. It is taken by the Commissioner, for his refusal, or perhaps dismissed the service; and while the Commissioner acts, and within themselves acknowledge the act well done, they dare not do otherwise. Why not? Because you and the press would, in the morning, be all abuzz with the news that "the liberties of the people were in danger—a citizen arrested while quietly walking the streets; these would be the hands of a scolding scold in the World, Times, and Herald; or, "No man safe from prison—in fact, that the days of the Spanish inquisition were revived," when in fact by such arrests thousands of dollars would be saved the returning soldier, and perhaps your life and mine in our parambulations around the city.
