

EXTRA BASE BALL GAME EXTRA

The Crematorium

Volume 23

Weather:- Hotter'nhell

HELL JUNE 10, 1921

Price 5 ¢

FLIES IN THE COMING OINTMENT. —by Tad.

"Bozey" Reiter (left), guardian of the keystone Jack. When interviewed recently especially for this publication "Boze" gave out the following statement concerning his views of the coming struggle:—

"O-o-oh!
the possibilities—!"

Town W. Lang, Major, U.S.A., who will probably occupy the mound. "Quibbling over the minutiae," the captain insists, "is indicative of a failure to grasp the spirit." It is this attitude of good sportsmanship which makes the lieutenant so popular with the fans. Corporal Lang may be relieved by "Doc" Cobb.

Raymond Walters, who will catch, and his genial smile. Mr. Walters is typical of the clean, two-fisted, fighting American of whom, it is lamentable, one meets so few.

FACULTY - SOPH GAME

PLAYED AT NIGHT !!!

CALCULUS UMPIRES.

One of the most thrilling games in the history of Lehigh will be played tonight on Taylor field, where, aided by a myriad of spotlights and the excited rooting of the two rival factions, the team representing the class of '23 will cross bats with the strong and hitherto undefeated Lehigh Faculty Athletic Club.

The Sophomores have been challenging the Faculty in a number of sports (indoor as well as out-of-door sports) during the entire year and have at last gotten their challenge accepted. They vow that the old horsehide will look like an hyperbolic ellipsoid when their bats are thru with it—and look forward to the fray with eager anticipation.

All of Bethlehem as well as the returning Alumni of Lehigh University will be on hand to watch this most Joe EX-1492.

Here we have a squirrel's eye view of hazy Jack Ogburn, M.N.O.P and also Q.R.S.T. The only living mathematician who ever successfully bent a tangent line in three places. He has a notable record which can be looked up under the title headed "Bertillon." He still eats with a knife and performs other cultured deeds of etiquette, such as using the prongs of his fork, at meal time, to dislodge choice particles of food from his incisors. The little fellow behind the glove is Mister Pee Wee Martin, formerly associated with Dingling Bros. Circus as a fire eater. His gleanings of baseball come from a direct connection with a church league, where he held down the position of first base on the choir as well as the team - being as good at one as the other - and rotten at both.

unique of games. A cheering section has been reserved for the Sophomore Class which will be present in a mass to cheer its team. The Faculty and their wives will also be there as loyal rooters. "Pete" Bouquel, the able ground-keeper, has spent the last three months solely in preparing them for this game, and the grounds are in superb condition.

"Inty" Calculus, well known universally in collegiate sporting circles for his unbiased stand for fairness and sportsmanship, will be on hand to officiate as umpire. He is especially noted for his ability to differentiate between right and wrong in close decisions and can be counted upon to give a creditable performance.

The game will be called at 10:15 P. M. sharp. It will be ushered in by a band recital, given by the Lehigh Band followed by a simple, yet touching, ceremony in which the Class of '23 will bestow a token of their appreciation upon the Freshman Class.

Probable line-up:

Lehigh Faculty A. C.
 "Thorny" Thornburg, r.f.
 "Bozey" Reiter, 2b.
 "Dutchy" Stocker, 3b.
 "Jo-Jo" Martin, ss.
 "Percy" Hughes, cf.
 "Runt" Charles, 1b.
 "Nat" Emory, lf.
 "Andy" Lang, p.

The Sophomores have refused to divulge their line-up.

Latest reports from the training tables of the two teams bring forth the following: The Sophs are sure of winning and are all keyed up for the fray. After a simple diet at "Bob" Young's the coach took the team over to Central Park for a quiet rest this evening to keep their minds off the game. They confided to me that Inty Gral their star pitcher, had developed a couple of curves recently, which he defied the Faculty to solve.

The Faculty team, after an hilarious banquet in the sanctum in Packer Hall, spent the early evening at the Coliseum. The men are all in the pink of condition and expressed veiled threats as to the Sophomores ever getting through the game.

Both teams arrived at Taylor Gym at 9:45 and commenced dressing.

Pete Boquel said that the grounds were in prime condition and gave forth as his opinion that the game would be livelier, played under the spotlights, than any recent daylight game.

The umpire, Calculus, when interviewed, seemed moody and depressed, in marked contrast to his unapproachable condition which was so apparent even so late as last Tuesday. His statement was that he'd place his money on the Faculty, if he had any.

TIMELY TIPS.

On the far side of the river Styx, in a land filled with fire and reeking with the odor of brimstone, Calculus, the accursed fiend, was born. He is the son of the hated Annie Lit and the loathsome Al Gebra. Altho not a bigamist, he leads a double life, and is known either as Differential or Integral. When talking with his mother the other day, she mentioned the fact that as a baby he had been infinitesimal, and that she had to employ the Witch of Agnesi to help her care for him. As his age increased and his murderous proclivities have developed, his mother admits that his power is infinite, but that she cannot solve or understand him. Calculus has demonstrated a most violent and extreme hate for